HAMBURGH, July 27.

WE learn from Berlin, that the King of Pruſſia is arrived at Konigsberg, that he has acknowledged Auguſtus for King of Poland. His Poliſh Majeſty is to ſet out from Warſaw as ſoon as the Floods are ſubſided. 'Tis added that Pruſſia being totally ruined by the Inundations of the Oder, the States of that Country, have intreated the Court to furniſh them with Corn from the Magazines at a ſet Price. Frankfort, and the other Cities upon the Oder, have alſo felt the Severity of the Floods: And as the River afore-mentioned has overflowed for 50 Leagues lengthwiſe, it muſt of courſe have ruined all the adjacent Meadows and Corn-fields. The laſt Letters from Petersburg adviſe, that two Tartars of Diſtinction arrived there to make their Homage to the Czarina, to whom they were ſent as Hoſtages by Count Munich. They write from Stockholm, that the Report is revived there of a tenth Electorate being ſhortly to be erected in favour of the Houſe of Heſſe Caſſel. We learn from the Army in the Crimea, that Count Munich was upon his March to give Battle to the Grand Viſir, who is advancing to the Aſſiſtance of the Tartars: So that we expect ſome extraordinary News from that Quarter by the firſt Letters. A curious Diſſertation is publiſhed here in two Sheets with this Title, A Project for reducing the Ottoman Empire to the Obedience of Chriſtian Princes, and the Manner of dividing it, tranſlated from the Italian into the German Language. The Whale-fiſhery has proved more favourable this Seaſon than it has been for 40 Years paſt.

Petersbourg, July 21. Three Days ago the Court receiv'd an Expreſs with the following Letter from the Veldt-Marſhal Count Munich.

After having made ourſelves Maſters of Konſtow and Kimbrun, I advanc'd with the Army towards Bilogrod, a ſmall Diſtance from the Black Sea but 100 Leagues from Aſoph. I have put all the Country under Contribution; I have ruin'd all the Places where the Enemy might draw together again, and have taken ſeveral Thouſands of the Tartars Priſoners. We have likewiſe found a great deal of Booty on theſe Coaſts, and taken a great Number of ſmall Veſſels on board of which the People had embark'd the Effects they deſign'd to ſave. The Conſternation is become general in the Crim, and encreaſes every Day; but the Cham ſeems reſolv'd to defend himſelf at Bacciſaray, where he is aſſembling all his Troops, and has ſent his Wives with the beſt of his Effects to Mancop, a Fortreſs ſituated on a very ſteep Mountain: That Place, where he keeps all his Treaſure, ſerves him for a Refuge when there is any Revolt or unhappy War in the Country. Gianum Coggio, Admiral of the Turks, is ſtill with his Squadron in the Port of Caffa, in order to defend that Place; and our Fleet, commanded by Admiral Bredahl, has been cruizing theſe ſeveral Days paſt in the Black Sea.

At the ſame Time that the Court receiv'd this Advice, they had alſo News that the Ottoman Army, being 100,000 ſtrong, and commanded by the Grand Vizir, was in full March for the Ukrain; upon which it was thought neceſſary to ſuſpend the Conqueſt of the Crim, and a Courier was accordingly ſent to Count Munich to leave Garriſons in Kimbrun, Koſlow and Precop, ſufficient to withſtand any Attempts of the Tartars, to join his Army to Veldt-Marſhal Count Laſci's, and then to march together and offer the Grand Vizir Battle. Count Munich is alſo given to underſtand, that if the Vizir propoſes a Suſpenſion of Arms, he may accept it, receive his Propoſals and then inform the Court of them. In the mean Time a Reſolution is taken to augment the Army that is to act againſt the Turks as much as poſſible, and to leave 40,000 Tartars, Coſſacks and Calmucks, towards the Black Sea, in order to preſerve the new Conqueſts there. The reſt of the Ruſſian Troops that are retiring out of

Poland,

Poland, have Orders to march into the Ukrain to defend that Province. The Court ſeems highly pleas'd with the Veldt-Marſhal Count Laſci's Conduct during the Siege of Aſoph: That General frequently expos'd himſelf to the Fire of the Enemy, in order to encourage the Troops by his Preſence, when it was either to take any important Poſt, or to repulſe the Turks in their frequent Sallies. General Munich's Nephew, who brought the News here of the Surrender of that Place, ſays they found Proviſions in it for a Year longer, and that our Batteries had prodigiouſly damaged the Fortifications, eſpecially on the Side next the River; that Count Laſci had ſet about repairing them when he came away, and augmenting them with new Works; and that he was to leave half his Army to cover the Workmen from the Inſults of the neighbouring Tartars and march with the reſt to join Count Munich.

Vienna, Auguſt 1. The laſt Letters from Conſtantinople bring Advice, that Baſhaw Boneval had refus'd to accept the Command of a Body of Troops that was offer'd him in the Grand Vizir's Army, under the Pretext that it was below the Dignity of the Rank to which he had been raiſed. Thoſe Letters add, that the Publick has no great Opinion of the Vizir's Abilities in the Art of War, that Miniſter having been bred up in the Seraglio, and never employ'd but in the Affairs of the State; beſides, he is of a very peaceable Diſpoſition, and has a mortal Averſion to War, which makes it believ'd that he will very readily put his Hand to help on an Accomodation with Ruſſia, towards which the Emperor's Miniſter has Orders to uſe his utmoſt Endeavours. In the mean Time the Grand Vizir made long Marches to go to the Relief of the Tartars, and laid 75 Bridges of Boats over the Danube in Walachia to facilitate the Paſſage of his Army: It is reckon'd that he paſs'd that River the 15th of laſt Month, and People think that he will go directly to Oczatow, near the Mouth of the Dnieper in the Black Sea, as ſoon as he is join'd by the Troops that are aſſembling in great Numbers about Bender. It is reported here, that if the Porte refuſes the Propoſals which Baron Dahlman has Orders to make them for an Accommodation with Ruſſia, the Emperor will immediately declare in Favour of the latter, conformable to his Treaties with that Court, and make a powerful Diverſion in Boſnia; and Orders are already ſent for nine Regiments of Foot and two of Horſe to march from Italy to Hungary immediately after the French have evacuated the Milaneze, which we hope will be very ſpeedily, the Emperor's Miniſter at Paris having lately diſpatch'd a Courier to this Court with very favourable Advices on that Head.

London, Aug. 3. The Diſunion which according to ſome Letters from Leghorn, reigns amongſt the Corſican Malecontents, hinders them from making any conſiderable Progreſs; and if we credit the Accounts from Genoa, their Affairs grow worſe every Day; that a Party of them that kept Algajola blocked up, was diſperſed and put to Flight by the Garriſon, who making an unexpected Sally, killed 100 of them, and made 150 Priſoners; 2 of their Chiefs have been beheaded at Baſtia. Moreover, the Territories of Balagra and Nebbio have ſubmitted to the Genoeſe; and the Malecontents are ſo far from being in a Condition to undertake the Siege of Baſtia, that all they can do is, to ſend ſmall Detachments to plunder and raiſe Contributions. The Lord Theodore, frighted at this gloomy Situation of his Affairs, has thought proper to fly with his Party to the Mountains.

London, Auguſt 11. They write from Warſaw, that the Court had received Advice from Kaminieck, a Town ſcituate upon the Frontiers of Turkey, that two Strangers from Conſtantinople arrived there the 10th Inſtant, having been eſcorted ſo far by a Detachment from the Turkiſh Garriſon of Choczim, and were proceeding on their Journey to Petersburg. It is ſuppoſed theſe Strangers, are the Secretaries of the Britiſh and Dutch Ambaſſadors at the Ottoman Porte, and are going to the Court of Ruſſia, with certain Propoſals of Peace between the two Empires.

Auguſt 19. This Morning Sir Charles Wager who yeſterday was thought to be ſomewhat better, lay at the laſt Extremity at his Houſe at Parſon's Green.

London, Auguſt 20. The Bakers of Dublin not liking the Aſſize of Bread made by the Lord Mayor, which was above 14*lb.* Houſhold Bread for 1*s.* refuſed to bake for 2 or 3 days, whereupon the poor People in that City were in great Diſtreſs; ſome had recourſe to Potatoes, and ſome bought Flour to bake themſelves, and found their Account in it, tho' the Bakers thought their Profit too ſmall; but the Church Wardens threatning to preſent them, as having no viſible way of living, they went to Baking again.

Auguſt 27, The Right. Hon. Sir Charles Wager, Knt. Firſt Lord Commiſſioner of the Admiralty, is declar'd to be abſolutely out of danger. This is the Report made to her Majeſty by Dr. Hollings.

His Majeſty's Yatchs are ordered to be dock'd and cleaned, in order to be ready to ſail for Holland about the 8th of September next.

We hear that ſince the Miſunderſtanding happened between Spain and Portugal, his Portugueſe Majeſty has bought in England, Arms, Accoutrements, &c. to the value of 80000 l.

About the Beginning of next Month His Majeſty willl review at Hanover the Regiments that were ſent from the Electorate to the Aſſiſtance of his Imperial Majeſty on the Rhine, Auguſt 30. By Letters from Holland, we have an Account, that her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs of Orange is ſeven Months gone with child, and that her Royal Highneſs is in very good Health.

Rhode-

Rhode-Island, Octob. 15. We are informed that about fourteen Days ago, one Joseph Borden of Tiverton, was kill'd by the Pounder of a Fulling-Mill, that fell by accident on his Head, and crush'd out his Brains.

Boston, Octob. 18. We have the following Account from a Gentleman of Character at Little Compton, on the 11th of October Instant, viz. "This Morning Mr. Ichabod Williston, a Gentlemen of this Town (universally belov'd while living, and now dead as much lamented) as he was busy about his Affairs at a Cyder Mill, the great Screw Press was accidentally overset, the uppermost great Beam fell upon his Head, and killed him dead on the Spot.

We hear from Smithfield, in Rhode-Island Government, That on Tuesday the 5th Instant, a very sorrowfull Accident fell our there; one Mr. Enman of that Town, as he was letting down a large Beam, to Press out Cyder, the said Beam fell down upon him, and kill'd him immediately.

And from Providence, we have an Account of a like melancholly Accident that happen'd there on Friday last; one Mr. Waistcoat of that Place, while about the same Employ which Mr. Enman was, the Beam fell down directly upon his Head, whereby his Brains were dash'd out, and he instantly died: He was decently buried last Lord's-Day.

NEW-YORK, October 30.

This being the Anniversary of His Majesty's Birth-Day, the same was observed here with the usual Solemnity. The hon. the Gentlemen of his Majesty's Council, the Gentlemen of the Assembly and those of this Corporation, with most of the principal Gentlemen of the City waited upon the Hon. GEORGE CLARK, Esq; Lieutenant Governor of this Province, at the Council-Chamber in the Fort, to pay him the usual Compliments of the Day, where his Honour and the Gentlemen assembled drank the Royal Healths under the Discharge of Cannon from the Fort (his Majesty's regular Troops being the whole Time under Arms.) But to add to the general Joy of the Day, his Honour received by Capt. Bryant, who arrived yesterday, a Commission from Her Majesty Queen Guardian of the Kingdom of Great-Britain, appointing him Lieut. Governor of the Province of New-York, which was published in the Council, and at the City Hall with the usual Solemnity. This happy Turn of Affairs diffused a general Joy throughout the City, to see a Period so effectually put to the Disorders that threatned us, and Peace and Quiet restor'd within our Borders.

Mr Franklin,

"AS this is the first, so in all probability it may be the last Trouble I shall give you: And if a Person entirely free from Partiality of every kind, may be allow'd to be a competent Judge; or rather, if general Consent may be rely'd upon, the young Lady represented in the following Piece, deserves far greater Encomiums than what is here offer'd.

"I suppose it's not very material to inform you, whether 'tis my own or another's Composition, since you are not likely to find out who is

On Mrs. M---y D------DGE, going from Philadelphia to B----l, by Water.

FROM Delawarian banks, the Muses seat,
What lovers sigh or poets sing, repeat.
M----y the publick care, the lovely theme,
Launch'd on the bosom of the silver stream;
The river, conscious of the prize it bore,
With prouder billows lash'd the sounding shore;
In the glad tumults wanton zephyrs stray,
From every wave the flutt'ring sunbeams play;
Faint likeness of the beauteous smiles that rise,
Wreath'd in her looks, and sparkling in her eyes.
No sweeter charms the queen of love displaid,
When rising from the deep, the new-born maid
First harnass'd to her shell the silver doves,
Chaste and unsullied yet by guilty loves.
Is't not enough that th' english fleet conveys
Destructive thunder to remotest seas?
Must beauty, like our valour, too disdain
Only on land to conquer and to reign,
And sovereign empire o'er the floods maintain?
Along the shore spontaneous flow'rs arise,
But the swift bark soon mortifies their joys;
Short-liv'd they droop, and mourn their Pleasures past;
The banks in murmurs chide the river's haste:
The luckiest angler throws his rod away,
And falls himself attractive beauty's prey;
With wishful eyes pursues the lovely fair,
And weaves the willow garland of despair.
The waving trees of B----l's pendent wood,
To meet her seem to rush into the flood,
Peep o'er their fellows heads to view the fair,
Whose name upon their wounded bark they bear.
Repress thy amorous haste, the lovely maid
In person deigns to chear thy gloomy shade:
Hail happy wood, nor envy Ida's grove. ----
Nor Juno's swan, with M--- may compare,
Chaste as Minerva and as Venus fair.
Say, fruitful stream, why lavish you supply
Fresh beauty to that too destructive eye?
For all thy copious fountains can't assuage
Those fires that in your Damon's bosom rage;
A miracle his passion must remove,
Flow backward to thy spring, he'll cease to love.
